Daniells' India

VIEWS FROM THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

- An exquisite selection of the Thomas and William Daniell's work in India.
- Daniells' work became a classic in its own days and has remained so.
- Paintings are regarded as one of the highest cultural achievements in history. Daniells' work was no different.

- The book presents India that the Daniells saw and which was different from the way it was seen by Indians. It contains 95 paintings by the masters.
- There is a remarkably serene air in their work, and life seems to move at a completely unhurried pace. While spectacular ruins rise in the background and fragments of antique columns lie around, ordinary men and women move about without care, going about the business of life.

In the year 1786 Daniells arrived in Kolkata via China. They travelled across India, painting Oriental Scenery wherever they went.

Their views were widely appreciated and are representative of that fascinating period.

Initially they announced only two sets of twelve works each. But such was the enthusiasm with which their work was greeted that they had to move on to producing a series in installments of two sets each, amounting to the staggering number of 144 views.
